Project Goal

The In-Home Juvenile Program provides community-based alternatives to incarceration and placement services to both males and females on parole. This enables young men and women to receive individualized programming and services in their homes and ultimately assists them in achieving their goals and achievements.

TAP includes:

- To prevent the development of a new generation of adult offenders.
- To reduce the intergenerational cycle of welfare dependence.
- To help young men and women accept accountability for their actions and become positive members of their communities.

The Intensive In-Home Programming and Services for Male and Female Offenders reflects the principles of Pennsylvania's new Juvenile Offenders.
